

Herald Cameramen Tell Their Story

IN GALE'S WAKE—You shudder involuntarily at this proof of hurricane's fury in playground of the "400." Photo shows section of heavy tile roof lifted bodily from one of Palm Beach mansions and deposited at foot of shattered palm tree. International Newsreel

AIR SHOW THRILL—This leap of F. W. Johnson, navy parachute king, was one of features of National Air Races at Los Angeles. Remarkable photo shows another gob about ready to jump as Johnson "slips" his chute so as to direct its descent. International Newsreel

YOUR PAPER SIRE—Pretty Katherine Kaull, University of Kansas co-ed, gets up at 5 o'clock, dons above costume and sells papers over five-mile route to pay her way through college. She's taking fine arts course and expects to be an illustrator some day. International Newsreel

DOGGONE HAPPY!—Ever see anything prettier than this basketful of prize Eskimo Spitz puppies? They're being exhibited by their owner, R. V. Sinclair, Washington, D. C., policeman. International Newsreel

NEWEST WRINKLE IN POLO—Aero polo played with large, inflated ball and racquets instead of mallets made its debut recently when British army officers staged a match at Roshampton, Eng. It looks exciting. International Illustrated News

BRING UP THE ARNICA!—That was next thing on program after Jimmy Taylor's painful spill in dirt track racing at Crystal Palace, London, while attempting to shave a corner too close. But the gritty racer went right out and won the next event. International Illustrated News

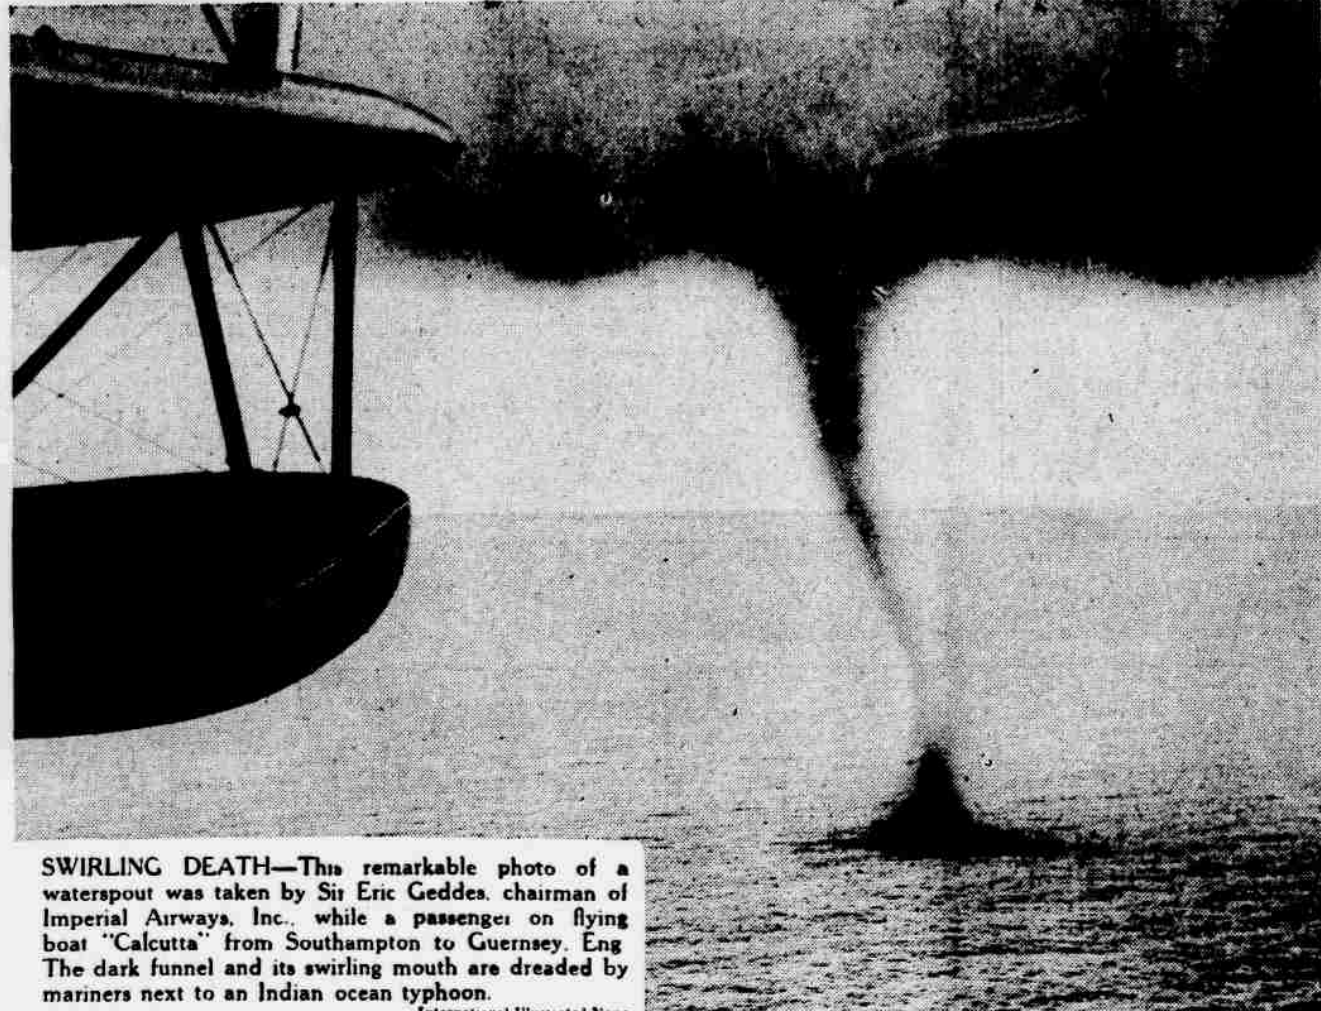

AH, GEE, FELLOWS!—William Ranieri, kidnaped Chicago boy, is shown here with his staunchest friend and admirer, Prince, following his release by members of Mafiosi band. Boy and dog couldn't look any more contented if they tried. International Newsreel

STARTED PENNY LUNCH—More than twenty years ago, Miss Ella A. Walsh, of Cincinnati, started first penny lunchroom for schoolchildren. She serves hot cereal for a penny and an ample mid-day meal for five. International Newsreel

16 MONTHS IN ARCTIC—Here's Donald B. McMillan, famous Arctic explorer, as he appeared upon arrival in New York after a year and four months in the frozen North. He was one of speakers at Radio World's Fair. International Newsreel

SWIRLING DEATH—This remarkable photo of a waterspout was taken by Sir Eric Geddes, chairman of Imperial Airways, Inc., while a passenger on flying boat "Calcutta" from Southampton to Guernsey, Eng. The dark funnel and its swirling mouth are dreaded by mariners next to an Indian ocean typhoon. International Illustrated News

LIFE-SAVING DEVICE—Jack Gardner, diver, is shown leaving air chamber of Simon Lake's submarine salvage ship, the "Defender." Inventor claims device will avert future U-boat tragedies by speeding up rescue work. International Illustrated News